Help Lift The United States Out Of Its Current Debt Crisis By Purchasing This Historic Venice Art Biennale Landmark!

The US Pavilion at the Venice Biennale is a Palladian-style structure built in 1930 by the then well-known architects William Adams Delano and Chester Holmes Aldrich. Within the Castello Gardens that house all the national pavilions of the Venice Biennale, the US Pavilion enjoys a prominent position. In 1986, the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation purchased the US Pavilion from the Museum of Modern Art, New York with funds provided by the Peggy Guggenheim Collection Advisory Board.

All proceeds from this sale (less the standard 6% commission fee) will be paid directly to the UNITED STATES TREASURY to service The UNITED STATES PUBLIC DEBT — a measure of the obligations of the UNITED STATES FEDERAL GOVERNMENT — which as of May 6, 2011, the Total Public Debt Outstanding of the United States of America was $14.32 trillion.
