FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

BERKELEY, Nov 2 - Hoping to assist The United States Pentagon and Defense Department's effectiveness in its current "Operation Infinite Justice" campaign in Afghanistan, Californian artist LG Williams and the design firm lg of beverly hills have developed two placards which may play a vital role in locating the illusive and hidden Taliban forces, aiding in the international struggle against terrorism.

Recently, there has been growing concern among The American military over the inability to find and bomb Taliban forces accurately in northern Afghanistan. As a result, opposition forces and small teams of American Special Operations have been largely ineffective since they are unable to identify specific Taliban military positions for strikes.

"Freedom Sign" after night time raid.

"Freedom Sign" and "Freedom Arrow" hope to change all that. They are two brightly colored signs, which can be inserted into food-ration packages before they are dropped from high-flying American military refugee relief planes. These two signs are highly visible graphic "indicator arrows" which can be placed with a stick near hidden terrorist outposts by the local population, dissatisfied with the tyranny and oppression of the Taliban regime.

"Once they are in place, Special Operation Forces can easily find them and determine which ones are best to strike and which aircraft and ordinance should be used," Williams said.

An unidentified Pentagon official said that these signs might be effective agents in the struggle to identify secret Taliban strongholds, which could be quickly bombed and destroyed. The signs, which the source referred to as "arrows on a long stick," could be used in a tactic commonly known as signaling. Once in place the signs can be spotted as far away as 600 feet by Military vehicles near the site.

"This is the best way that we have to find out what is really going on in this hilly and cavernous country. These signs will encourage the locals to help us because the process is based on anonymity," the artist said.
